Facts About London
Jazzy Matlock 4th

The United Kingdom's capital city, London, covers 610 square miles is huge. Founded in A.D. 43 it's also old and powerful. London is a hub of culture, business, and politics and center of the once glorious British Empire that can still throw its weight around the globe. Served by a fabulous subway system, numerous tour buses and the iconic black taxi, London is not difficult to find your way around in. And despite the city's enormity, the center is small enough to make walking a good option. Just mind the warnings painted on the curb to look right when crossing the street. Drivers come at you, unexpectedly, along the left side of the road. London is also home to Big Ben!!!

So go to London this summer, you will not regret it!!!!

Their roar is as loud as a monster yelling boo! A mother polar bears dig's a hole in snow then they she gives birth to twins in the winter. They live with there mother 28 months to learn survival skills. Did you know that underneath all their fur they have black skin? Oh I forgot to tell you that the dad might kill his own cub just because.

The Super Bowl
Madison Hagood 5th

The Super Bowl was on Sunday February 3, 2007. The New England Patriots played the New York Giants. In the GT class, 3 people thought the Patriots were going to win and Zane, Dillon and Daniel thought the Giants would win.

The other kids did not know for sure.
On the 3rd, the Giants made the first field goal. At the half, the score was 7 to 3 and the Patriots were winning.
With 59 seconds left, Eli Manning threw a pass to Tyler Bures and the Giants made another touchdown. Now the score was 17 to 14.

With 10 seconds left, the fans and coaches came onto the field cheering for the Giants. But the game was not over yet.
Once everyone was off the field, there was only 1 second left. But the Giants had to run one last play.

Then they niel the ball, the game was over and the underdog Giants had won!!!

The Patriots were now 18-1.

One year before Super Bowl 47, Payton Manning (Eli Manning's big brother) had won the Super Bowl for the Colts.

Finally, someone had beaten the undefeated New England Patriots!!!!
